PMLK celebrates Ramadan Iftar with local community

To appreciate the blessings of the holy fasting month of Ramadan, Universiti Malaysia Pahang (UMP) popularly referred to its Arabic term as Iftar – in a congregation between its students and the surrounding localities.

Dubbed the 'Program Iftar Perdana Mahasiswa & Masyarakat', the Iftar congregation on May 11, 2019, was a series of programmes of endearing the students to the locals.

It was jointly coordinated by UMP's Off-Campus Students Association (PMLK), Department of Student Affairs (MPP), Academic Staff Association (PAKAD), Department of Social Skills from the Centre of Modern Languages & Human Sciences (CMLHS) together with the representatives from Makmur Gambang Jaya Residents Association.

According to the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Student Affairs & Alumni), Professor Dato' Dr. Yuserrie Zaini, the Iftar programme is a result of many efforts undertaken by UMP to build rapport and foster good relationship between its PMLK and the surrounding localities.

"The Iftar Perdana programme is certainly a positive platform for the university's off-campus students, enabling them to communicate with the local communities, under a warm and friendly ambience," said Professor Dato' Dr. Yuserrie Zaini.

What was interesting to see at the Iftar Perdana, he highlighted, was the goodwill contribution of raw materials and vegetables, from the local residents.

Such noble and encouraging act is part of the university's ongoing initiatives, under the UMP Campus Partnership Programme, to pool contributions for the needy students – of which, was apparently and mutually enjoyed by both the university and local communities at the Iftar Perdana.

Meanwhile, Centre for Modern Languages & Human Sciences (CMLHS) Head of Department (Social Skills & Leadership), Professor Dato' Dr. Rohana, PMLK Advisor, said UMP holds in high regards the importance of holistic development of its undergraduate students.

"On that note, developing leadership traits and social skills for off-campus students is seen as a necessity to prepare them for the challenging 'real world' situations they have to face daily. Living off-campus is actually an opportunity for them to better manage post-graduation real life," Dr. Rohana emphasized.

“Indirectly, PMLK can be the right platform to encourage the off-campus students into being accustomed to the community, into being community leaders after they graduate,” she pointed out.

From another point of view, the Iftar Perdana Programme Director, Muhd Haziq Abdul Halim, said such Iftar students at the university get easy access to preparing meals for their breaking of fast.

“As a matter of fact, the Iftar Perdana programme creates a stronger bond among the students, as well as each other cook and prepare the Iftar meals,” he said jubilantly.

Over 500 people attended the Iftar Perdana, where they were served with specially-cooked dishes for the Masak Merah, Ikan Kerisi Goreng, vegetables, fruits and desserts. A short talk on the blessings of Ramadan by Mohd Suharmi Mat Jusoh.

Also representing UMP at the Iftar Perdana were Dean of CMLHS, Associate Professor Dr. Muhammad JHEPA’s Welfare Department, Azlina Abdul Mubin; and MPP President, Zakwan Zulkifle; while the local group District, SM Mohd Hanif Ahmad; and Head of Committee for the Makmur Gambang Jaya Residents Association.
