All of these are learning outcomes that are the main objective of the SUKSIS programme, thus forming an excellent personality as a leader of calibre and knowledge in the field of policing.

“Indeed, our country needs a generation of leaders who are knowledgeable, cultured, brilliant, responsible, visionary, with integrity, resilient and passionate about realising the national agenda.

Of these, 38 are currently serving as senior officers of the Royal Malaysian Police (RMP) in various areas of expertise.

"Use this opportunity to continue in the field of policing and use this advantage in other sectors based on the skills and discipline achieved during three years because uniformed bodies such as SUKSIS can instil discipline and identity and produce students who are knowledgeable about the law and the practice of policing discipline," he said.
