"This time, we are going to distribute food to help the communities in Kota Tinggi that are still affected by the floods and are still in flood relief centres.

"With Zero Hunger in mind, this assistance provides emergency food to enable them to get healthy and ready-to-eat food.

"The initiative by UMP and Yayasan UMP with the support of MOHE allows those affected by the flood here to get food prepared using retort technology such as rice with chicken in sambal, meat in soy sauce and fried rice," he said.

He further said that Kilau UMP volunteers among staff and students are always ready to assist in post-flood activities to ease the burden on families.

For Neek Ahmad, he appreciated the presence of Dato' Seri Mohamed Khaled and MOHE as well as the volunteers of the Higher Education Institution (IPT).

"In addition, a lot of assistance was received from various agencies including food assistance, health checks and logistics, especially when communication was cut due to flooding lasting for several days," he said.
